Before an interview, it is very important to do your research. Not only researching yourself, but also your employer, the company, etc. Also, it is very important to be able to show your skills and not just state what you can do, which is the “show and tell” method. It is also very important to arrive on time. It is recommended to arrive in the facility thirty minutes early so you do not have to worry about rushing. Also, always make good eye contact. It is important to be very confident in yourself and to show that to your interviewers. You also want to communicate effectively and properly. Be confident in your responses because your interviewer will notice that. Make sure you are dressed appropriately and that you are not wearing something too casual or too fancy, but it is just right. First impressions are very important, so you want to make a good one.
